Q4 & FY23 Performance Discussion

Management Commentary

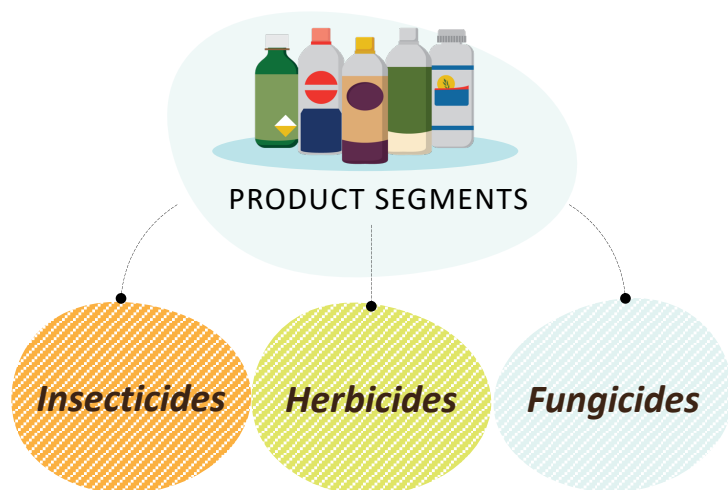

- Q4 and the entirety of FY23 presented significant challenges for the Company. The reasons for this remained consistent throughout each quarter, encompassing factors such as destocking at the customer level, higher inventories within trade channels, declining prices of agrochemicals and raw materials, and subdued demand in various markets.
- Specifically, Q4 witnessed a decline in profitability due to the liquidation of higher cost inventories from previous quarters, resulting in reduced gross profit margins and thus bottom line. Although this decision had short-term pain, it proved beneficial as we observed further erosion in said material prices in the subsequent months. Additionally, the Finance Cost in Q4 was notably higher due to interest incurred on raw material purchases, while Other Expenses increased due to some foreign exchange losses.
- As previously communicated, Q1FY24 is anticipated to outperform the preceding two quarters due to the resumption of dispatches in contract manufacturing. While the dispatches have resumed from April, the industry landscape is still not as favorable as initially anticipated at this stage. Price erosion continues due to excessive inventory in trade channels, and there maybe some spillover in demand from Q1 to Q2.
- Given the current circumstances, we are placing an increased emphasis on Branded Formulations sales for the upcoming year. Branded Formulations did reasonably well given the overall industry situation in FY23. For the coming year, our strategy entails expanding into new regions within our existing domestic markets, exploring opportunities in newer markets in North-East India, and appointing additional dealers and distributors as we have done in the previous year as well.

Aimco Going Forward

- 22 Long Term Strategies
- 23 Outlook

Long Term Strategies

Identifying products for commercial development

In the last few years, since our operational turnaround, the company has been constantly focusing on adding newer molecules to its product portfolio.

Identifying products for commercial development

After the initial development phase, the company is investing in data collection and product registration globally, which is a time and capital-intensive procedure.

Expanding technical portfolio

The company has a principal focus on expanding its competencies in its technical grade portfolio. That is the domain in which its strength lies.

Aimco is making continuous efforts to add:

- a) Products which would prove to be profitability margin assertive and
- b) Have an opportunity size bigger than our existing products

Outlook

Existing Technical Products

The company is ramping up production and capacities for existing products. The contract manufacturing deal in 2021 was a big success on this front. The Company has increased up capacity to 6,000 tonnes in FY23 from earlier 4,500 tonnes.

Additions in Technical Portfolio

There are a few products under development in various categories such as Herbicides, Insecticides, and Plant Growth Regulators (PGR).

CAPEX

The Company plans to ramp up capital expenditure towards capacity additions

Branded Domestic Formulations

FY23 performance of Branded Formulations business was better than rest of the verticals. The Company is working on scaling this business in the coming year, with additional markets, and expanding its distribution network.

Profitability

Aimco is focusing on improving its blended profitability margins by increasing scale of operations in the technicals vertical, commercializing new molecules with better competitive dynamics, and increasing scale of overall operations.
