MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION & ANALYSIS REPORT

ANNEXURE TO BOARD'S REPORT

1.0 INTRODUCTION

The Company is engaged in the business of manufacture of power driven pumps and industrial valves. Castings are mainly produced for captive consumption.

2.0 INDUSTRY STRUCTURE AND DEVELOPMENT

2.1 General

In the year 2013, the global growth continued to remain moderate, with an uneven recovery across industrial countries. Activity in major emerging market economies barring China has decelerated on account of weak domestic demand, notwithstanding some improvement in export performance.

In India, the increase in real GDP growth in mid of 2013, though modest, was driven largely by robust growth of agricultural activity, supported by an improvement in net exports. However, the weakness in industrial activity persisting into end of 2013, lackluster lead indicators of services and subdued domestic consumption demand suggest continuing headwinds to growth. The manufacturing sector, where your Company is operating, in fact, contracted during 2013. Tightening government spending in early 2014 to meet budget projections will add to these headwinds. In this context, the revival of investment, especially in the infrastructure projects cleared by the government, will be critical.

Retail inflation has risen unrelentingly during the year, pushed up by the upturn in vegetable prices, housing inflation and increased levels of inflation in the non-food and non-fuel categories. High inflation at both wholesale and retail levels risks entrenching inflation expectations at unacceptably elevated levels, posing a threat to growth, financial stability and exchange rate stability.

The narrowing of the trade deficit since June through November, due to positive export growth and contraction in both oil and non-oil imports, should bring the current account deficit down to a more sustainable level for the fiscal year as a whole.

2.2 Pumps & Valves Industries

Global revenue growth in the machinery sector declined in 2013. The backdrop to this was underutilization of production capacities in many countries limiting the need for investments in new plants. Due to subdued domestic demand, the project business of pumps and valves therefore remained difficult, while the general business with standard products for building services and industrial segment offered comparatively better prospects.

3.0 OPPORTUNITIES AND THREATS

With India's ever growing requirements of energy and capacity addition planned by the government, though demand is subdued at the moment, there exists substantial opportunity for future growth as the Company's products are geared up for this sector.

With the globalisation, new international players are making a thrust in the Indian market by creation of additional manufacturing capacities. This would result in further intensification of competition leading to price pressures.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION & ANALYSIS REPORT (Contd.)

4.0 SEGMENTWISE PERFORMANCE

During the year under review, pumps worth ₹ 5082 Million (previous year ₹ 4797 Million) and valves worth ₹ 1182 Million (previous year ₹ 1415 Million) were sold.

Out of the above, export of pumps and valves in terms of value were ₹ 1068 Million (previous year ₹ 1034 Million).

5.0 OUTLOOK

The Company expects the market for pumps and services to grow moderately. The market for valves is expected to be sluggish, primarily due to poor demand from the power sector. Company is taking effective steps to improve earning before income tax in current year.

6.0 RISKS & CONCERNS THE MANAGEMENT PERCEIVE

The competition is expected to be more aggressive leading to price pressures. Uncertainty in global economic growth coupled with inflationary pressures is expected to impact the growth rate in India and consequently the Company's operations.

The growth in the industrial sector depends on government policies, better infrastructure, removal of labour market rigidities and growth in agricultural sector.

7.0 INTERNAL CONTROL SYSTEM & THEIR ADEQUACY

Internal Control Systems are implemented:-

- To safeguard the Company's assets from loss or damage;
- To keep constant check on cost structure;
- To provide adequate financial and accounting controls and implement accounting standards.

The system is improved and modified continuously to meet with changes in business condition, statutory and accounting requirements.

Internal controls are adequately supported by Internal Audit and periodic review by the management.

The Audit Committee meets periodically to review -

- Financial statements, with the management and statutory auditors;
- Adequacy/ scope of internal audit function, significant findings and follow up thereon and findings of any abnormal nature, with the internal auditors.

8.0 DISCUSSION ON FINANCIAL PERFORMANCE WITH RESPECT TO OPERATIONAL EFFICIENCY

Due to better working capital management, utilization of short-term borrowings has reduced resulting in reduction of finance cost.

The following statements cover financial performance review, which are attached to this report.

- a) Distribution of Income
- b) Financial Position at a glance
- c) Financial Summary

9.0 MATERIAL DEVELOPMENTS IN HUMAN RESOURCES, INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS

In 2013, even though the business sentiment was low throughout the year, attracting and retaining talent continued to be a challenge for us. We continued our efforts for People Development Initiatives with more focused approach on Leadership Development and Capability Development Programmes. Other

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION & ANALYSIS REPORT (Contd.)

HR Initiatives like Succession Planning, Performance Management, Employee Communication Meeting and E-learning were executed as planned. On boarding process for new employees was strengthened by implementing the new initiative on International Qualification Standards.

As a part of implementation of Occupational Health and Safety Standards, Health and Safety programmes are being conducted for all employees in phases. Industrial relation at all the plants were cordial and healthy.

in the pump and valve business and assumption with regard to domestic and global economic conditions, government and regulation policies etc. The performance of the Company is dependent on these factors.
