Annual Report 2014-2015

ECONOMIC OVERVIEW

The Indian economy remained upbeat during the year, with a stable government at the Centre infusing positivity through a series of key initiatives. Controlled inflation, rise in domestic demand, increase in investments, decline in oil prices and structured reforms boosted economic sentiment to push growth.

According to Central Statistical Office (CSO) data, as per the new series with 2011-12 as base year, real Gross Domestic Product (GDP) growth rate for FY2015 is 7.3%, as against the revised FY2014 GDP growth of 6.9%. With improvement in the overall economic and consumer sentiment, Current Account Deficit (CAD) came down to a mere 0.2% of GDP for the March 2015 quarter and the same shrank to 1.3% of GDP for full financial year 2014-15.

The Rupee also showed robustness, losing only 4.3% of value against the US Dollar to become one of the best performers in the world. The Reserve Bank of India (RBI), on its part, softened its monetary policy stance by cutting repo rates by 25 basis points from 7.75% to 7.5% in March 2015.

Amid the growth revival, inflation declined to 4.87% in April 2015, hitting a record low of 4.38% in November 2014. The average Wholesale Price Index (WPI) inflation came down to (2.33%) during 2014-15 from 6% in 2013-14, due to sharp decline in inflation of majority of the groups like non-food articles, minerals, crude petroleum, fuel and power, rubber and plastic products and basic metals, alloys and metal products. Food price inflation also came down to 6.31% during this period.

Despite a 12% monsoon rainfall deficiency, agriculture and allied sectors continued to be a key contributor to the GDP growth, registering a 1.1% increase. Loss in production was successfully contained at 3% over the previous year and overall production exceeded the average production during the last 5 years by 8.2 million tonnes.

As per the  $2^{nd}$  advance estimates for 2014-15, total food grains production in India is estimated at 257.1 million tonnes.

The next few years will see increased growth momentum for the agriculture sector, as a result of higher investment in agricultural infrastructure, such as irrigation facilities, warehousing and cold storage. As per the 12th Five Year Plan's estimates, storage capacity is targeted to go up to 35 MT and overall growth target is 4%. Other factors expected to contribute to the upward trend are reduced transaction costs & time, better port gate management and fiscal incentives. Increased use of genetically modified crops is also expected to improve the yield of the Indian farmers. Recognising the importance of the agriculture sector, the Government has also initiated a number of steps in the budget 2014-15 for sustainable development of agriculture.

GLOBAL RICE OVERVIEW

The 2014 global paddy season closed with an above-average production outturn as the dreaded effects of an El Niño weather event failed to materialise. For 2015, FAO's first forecast sees global paddy production recovering by a modest 1.1% to 749.8 million tonnes (499.9 million tonnes, milled basis). This is despite the 0.5% contraction in 2014 world paddy resulting from climatic setbacks. Global paddy production in 2014 was 741.3 million tonnes (494.4 million tonnes, milled basis).

Assuming normalisation of the growing conditions, the Asian region is predicted to drive the 2015 global expansion, with sizable gains expected in India, Indonesia, Philippines, Sri Lanka and Thailand. It is expected that these gains would more than compensate for anticipated contractions in Bangladesh, the Chinese Province of Taiwan, the Republic of Korea, Pakistan and Vietnam. Outside of Asia, early prospects for Africa point to some output increases arising from improved weather conditions and/or strong prices.

Moderate output gains are also anticipated in Europe on account of attractive Japonica rice prices in the EU and the Russian Federation, as well as in Latin America and the Caribbean, in spite of unseasonal weather and tight profit margins. In North America, the USDA forecasts a small contraction of output in the United States, reflecting a prolonged drought in California and weak price prospects. Output in Australia is also poised to contract in 2015, given the recurring water availability constraints.

FAO's revised estimates of world rice trade in 2014 have undergone a considerable 2.2 million tonnes upward revision since December. International trade flows are now estimated to have grown by 14% from 2013, to a new record of 42.4 million tonnes (milled basis).

On the demand side, the heightened 2014 import estimates mostly concerned Far Eastern countries, which emerged as the prime drivers of 2014 import growth. Bangladesh, China (Mainland), Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines and Sri Lanka are all estimated to have let in much larger volumes than in 2013. Revised estimates also show imports to have increased since 2013 in a number of African countries.

FAO has also made upward revisions in exports. The largest such revision has been for India, with exports going up 7% over 2013. Pakistan has also shown increase of exports in the same period. In contrast, Argentina and Vietnam shipped less than foreseen last December; overall, these countries, along with Australia, Cambodia, China (Mainland) and the United States, delivered less rice on the global front than in 2013.

In terms of international trade in calendar year 2015, FAO has upgraded its forecast to 41.3 million tonnes since December - just 2% short of the 2014 record of international trade.

As a result, overall 2014 output in India is now pegged at 154.5 (103.0 million tonnes, milled basis), implying a 3% yield-driven annual contraction, but still the fourth largest crop on record. expanding food consumption to 419.8 million tonnes.

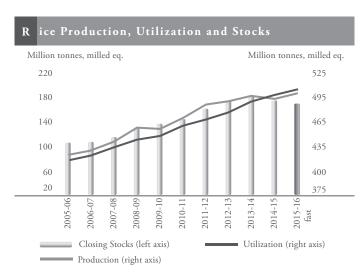

Consistent with reductions to the 2014 production figures, FAO's forecast of world rice utilisation in 2014-2015 has also been lowered to 499.4 million tonnes (milled basis). This is 1.7% or 8.2 million tonnes more than the estimate for 2013-14. The forecast growth mostly mirrors expectations of 1.3% progress in world food consumption to 414.6 million tonnes - a level that would support a small (0.2%) increase in average per caput food intake to 57.4 kilos. Based on FAO's first outlook, global rice utilisation in 2015-16 could increase to 505.7 million tonnes, again sustained by expanding food consumption to 419.8 million tonnes.

Management Discussion & Analysis

INDIAN RICE OVERVIEW

India continues to remain competitively positioned in the global rice market at the back of surplus rice stockpiles and improved production methods. The strength of the Indian rice industry is endorsed by the upward revision by FAO.

As per the FAO Rice Market Monitor, April 2015, India has retained its prime position among world suppliers in 2014. During the year, India shipped an unprecedented 11.3 million tonnes, or 7% more than in 2013. This was despite an overall decline, in percentage terms, of rice exports, resulting from lower production volumes triggered by the effects of a poor monsoon.

USDA Post has estimated India's MY 2014-15 (October-September) rice exports at around 9 million tonnes, (around 5.8 million tonnes of basmati and 3.2 million tonnes of non-basmati), down about 13% from an estimated 10.3 million tonnes. An anticipated decline in supplies from low production and competition from other rice exporting countries was the major cause for the shortfall.

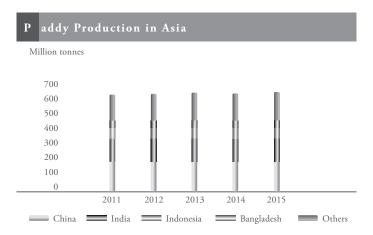

The Post estimates MY 2014-15 rice production at about 102 million tonnes (about 89.5 million tonnes from Kharif and 13 million from Rabi). This is down from an estimated 106.6 million tonnes in 2013-14, based on lower yield of Kharif (June-December) and less acreage of Rabi (November – March). Planting of Rabi 2015, as of January 30, 2015, has declined about 17% to around 1.5 million hectares from 1.8 million hectares last year.

(Source: http://www.oryza.com/21944/usda-post-estimates-india-my-2014-15-rice-exports-9-million-tons-down-16-last-year)

However, FAO's Rice Market Monitor, citing the Government of India's Second Advanced Estimates of 2014 production released in February, has positioned Kharif crop at 134.3 million tonnes (89.6 million tonnes, milled basis). This is 1,50,000 tonnes less than previously foreseen by FAO. It is also 2.1% short of the 2013 cyclone-depressed turnout. Due to constraints in the availability of water for irrigation and electricity shortages in southern producing states, output from Rabi crop is gauged at 20.2 million tonnes (13.5 million tonnes, milled basis), nearly 8,00,000 tonnes lower than forecast by FAO and down 11% year-on-year.

As a result, overall 2014 output in India is now pegged at 154.5 (103.0 million tonnes, milled basis), implying a 3% yield-driven annual contraction, but still the fourth largest crop on record.

PADDY PRODUCTION IN INDIA

For 2015, FAO's preliminary forecasts indicate total production at 158.2 million tonnes (105.5 million tonnes, milled basis), 2.4% or 3.7 million tonnes more than the 2014 estimate. The final figures would, however, depend on the rainfall in the season.

Assuming normal conditions, the various reforms being contemplated by the Indian government for the Food Corporation of India (FCI), as well as the emphasis in the 2015-16 Union Budget on addressing low productivity levels and large disparities in yields in the country, are expected to boost growth, going forward. As part of its 2015-16 budgetary allocations, the Government has raised allotments to food subsidies by 1.4% to  $\ref{total}$  1.24 trillion (USD 19.9 billion). The Centre has also instructed state governments to eliminate all procurement of rice under statutory levy, as of  $1^{st}$  October 2015.

Programmes such as the "Rashtriya Krishi Vikas Yojana" (RKVY) - of which 'Bringing the Green Revolution to Eastern India scheme' is a part, as well as the National Food Security Mission, will fall under a new cost-sharing mechanism between the central government and states. Such programmes are expected to encourage strong positivity in the agriculture sector.

(Source: FAO Rice Market Monitor, April 2015)

As per the USDA Post, India's exports in 2015-16 are estimated at about 8.5 million tonnes, (4 of non-basmati and 4.5 of basmati) on relative tight exportable supplies. India's rice exports will have to struggle to compete with cheaper cargoes from Thailand in 2015, as Bangkok looks to offload the grain from its huge state stockpiles.

According to APEDA, India's export of cereals stood at ₹ 58,279.80 crore during FY2015. Rice (including basmati and non basmati) occupied the major share in India's total cereals export with 64.40% during the same period. Other cereals including wheat represented 35.60% share in total cereals exported from India during this period. The major importing countries of India's cereals during the period were Iran, Saudi Arabia, Indonesia, UAE and Bangladesh.

Indian basmati has been the rice of choice for the world for years. Exporters from India entered into the world rice trade largely through the export of small quantities of highly priced basmati rice which was less than 5% in mid-1980s. Over the past few years, India's basmati export has been growing steadily, from 7.71 Lacs metric tonnes in 2003 to an estimated 37.57 Lacs metric tonnes in 2013-14 on robust demand from the traditional markets in West Asia. Iran alone has been importing 40% of the total Basmati export from India.

In FY2015, India was the leading exporter of basmati to the global market, with Saudi Arabia, Iran, United Arab Emirates, Iraq and Kuwait the leading destinations. As per APEDA statistics, India exported 37,02,260 MT of basmati rice to the world for the worth of ₹ 27,597.89 Crores during the year.

The basmati rice industry thus remains in a positive mode, with basmati growers increasing rice acreage in 2014-15 by about 31% to around 2.1 million hectares from around 1.6 million hectares in 2013-14. A further increase in acreage is expected next year as basmati consumes less water and delivers higher yields, thus fetching more returns to farmers. Given the forecast of a relatively low rainfall in the 2015-16 monsoon season, sowing more of basmati would be beneficial to the farmers despite the lower returns in 2014-15. In terms of pricing, basmati remained under pressure during the year gone by due to increased supplies and reduced demand from major importers like Iran. Indian basmati rice prices fell significantly as a result of these developments. Though basmati exports to Iran declined about 35% y-o-y, to around 9,35,000 tonnes, exports to other destinations like US, Saudi Arabia and other Western countries increased significantly, resulting in total exports declining only marginally to 37,02,260 MT in 2014-15 as compared to 37,57,271 MT in the previous fiscal.

Besides China, South Africa and Mexico are the other new markets that Indian companies have been exploring to augment basmati rice exports. At present, Iran, Saudi Arabia, Iraq, Kuwait and United Arab Emirates are the major export destinations for Indian basmati rice.

RISKS & CONCERNS

■ Raw Material Risk

Quality rice production necessitates smooth supply of premium paddy as the key raw material and any price or production fluctuations of this commodity can hit profitability and adversely impact the Company's business.

Risk Mitigation

Strong farmer relations, built over years through a well-established contact farming system, insulate the Company from this risk.

■ Premiumness & Quality Risk

KRBL's strong quality focus backed by its brand equity has ensured consistent consumer loyalty which translates into premium realisations. However, changing consumer preferences can lead to a shift in consumer loyalty and decline in realisations.

Risk Mitigation

The Company is globally certified by various top-ranking agencies for its high levels of quality. These include BRC Certification for meeting the requirements of Global Standard for Food Safety issued by SGS; SQF Code, 7th Edition, for Comprehensive Safety and Management System; and SGS for Food Safety System Certification, 22000. Premiumness is also ensured through optimal aging and integrated operations.

■ Competition Risk

The global and domestic rice markets are witnessing increasing competition from unbranded and unorganized players, as well as imitations and private labels.

Risk Mitigation

The Company is successfully mitigating this risk through brand and marketing initiatives aimed at enhancing consumer loyalty, which enables it to sustain its leadership ranking.

■ Foreign Exchange Risk

Rupee depreciation is detrimental to the Company's revenues as it has a large exports component.

Risk Mitigation

The Company has in place a well structured foreign exchange risk management policy to hedge all foreign exchange exposures.

Cost Risk

The Company's business is working capital intensive, requiring ageing and storage facilities that involve high inventory costs.

Risk Mitigation

The Company's brand equity and premium quality facilitate recovery of these costs through increased sales price over competition.

Regulatory Risk

Any regulatory policies that adversely affect the industry would impact the Company's business.

Risk Mitigation

The Company's diversified model insulates it from this challenge.

■ Product Concentration Risk

KRBL's main product is Basmati risk, which makes it susceptible to operational risks as any impact on the Basmati business will badly hit the overall revenues of the Company.

Risk Mitigation

KRBL has forayed into, and is continuously expanding its presence in, value-added products and Power business as a diversification measure. The Company also deploys a multi-brand, multi-product strategy spanning various price points to counter this risk.

■ Geo-political Risk

Frequent political turmoil and unrest in the Middle East - India's biggest export market for Basmati Rice - poses a serious risk to exports.

Risk Mitigation

Expansion into new markets, including the US, Europe, Australia and New Zealand, is a strategic decision that helps the Company negate this threat to a significant extent. Africa and China are other markets that have opened up to Indian Basmati.

Report on Corporate Governance

REPORT ON CORPORATE GOVERNANCE

Peter F. Drucker

KRBL Limited ('KRBL' or 'the Company') beliefs that good corporate governance is about ensuring that companies are managed as efficiently as possible in the interests of the shareholders.
